VOLUME XVII
Published by
THE SENIOR CLASS
of
PRESBYTERIAN
CLINTON, S.C. COLLEGE

This Volume is dedicated, with cordial Esteem and Gratitude, to a Man of optimistic Vision, of comprehensive Outlook, of resolute Purpose, of invincible Courage, of ready Resourcefulness, of abiding Hope, of inspiring Faith in God and Men, of sympathetic
Insight into adolescent Character and Aspirations, of unswerving Adherence to what is Right;
—to whom else, then, but to him who during the two years of his Administration has done so much for Presbyterian College?
No other than,

Pres. John McSween, B.S., B. D.

DEDICATION

In this seventeenth volume of the PaC SaC we have attempted to portray the life and activity of the campus as at present, and to commemorate and perpetuate the history of the fifty years of Presbyterian College's existence.

We hope that in years to come you may scan its pages and find it ever a source of fond recollections and pleasant memories.

Youthful Ideals

*Old aims, old hopes, old faiths that now are lost,
Which once I thought so strong and firm of root,
Were all too frail to thrive in Summer's heat,
And Autumn's reapers found but little fruit,
While Winter's calm reflection bared the truth
That each was but the golden dream of youth.*

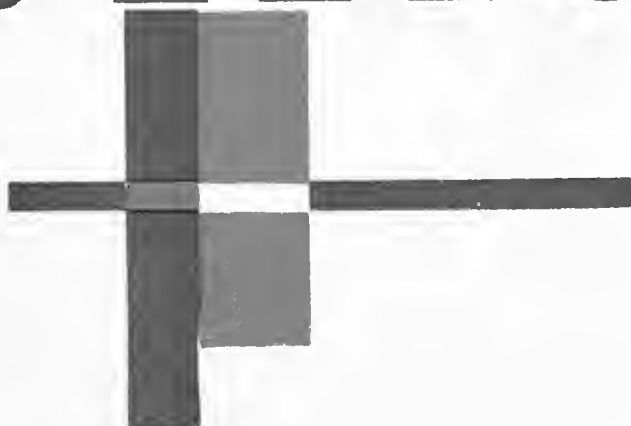

*New aims, new hopes, new faiths replace the old.
They, too, may wither on the sunny day:
But if they briefly furnish me a mould,
Wherein to shape life's youthful way:
And then give way to thoughts which nobler seem,
I shall not hold their worth of small esteem.*

1880

“Believe It Or Not”

By F. H. THORNLEY

(With apologies to MR. RIPLEY)

“The first commencement was held on the 5th July, 1883. An address was delivered by Col. B. W. Ball of Laurensville and diplomas were delivered to the graduating class composed of three young ladies.”

“For the sum of one hundred dollars paid quarterly in advance, students will be received, boarded and educated in the College building under Prof. Lee’s immediate care and supervision.”

“Study hours are strictly observed for those residing in the College building, under Prof. Lee’s presence and supervision. Students residing elsewhere can obtain this advantage by application for it.”

“The morals of the village are the best. No liquor is sold within the limits of the town, a special law forbidding its sale within three miles of the Clinton Depot. There are no bar rooms or billard saloons.”

“Board can be had in any of the families of the village, at eight dollars per month. Washing can be had at the rate of fifty cents per month in advance.”

“Records of scholarship, deportment and absence are regularly kept, and reports of the same are sent to parents and guardians at the close of each month and oftener if desired or considered necessary.”

“The Summer Vacation is from the first Friday in July to the first Monday in September.”

“In addition to the literary course, students can receive instruction in Vocal and Instrumental Music, and also in Drawing and Painting. These departments are under control of accomplished teachers. The price for each is three dollars per month. Use of the instrument, extra.”

“The girls will have a boarding house separate from the young men, and will be under the special care of a lady teacher.”

“We strictly prohibit card playing or other games of chance, intoxicating liquors and the carrying of concealed weapons.”

“Room rent may be had at the rate of ten dollars per session, in Alumni Hall, a dormitory now being erected. A refectory will be connected with the dormitory building for the benefit of students. The rate of the board will be $4.50 to $5.50 per month.”

“The degree of Master of Arts, M. A. is open to resident graduates of all regular colleges, who have received the degree of B. A.”

“If you doubt this, write for proof to the author.”

History of Presbyterian College

THE EXISTENCE and early continuance of the Presbyterian College of South Carolina was due to the faith, energy and influence of Rev. Wm. P. Jacobs, D.D., LL.D. Dr. Jacobs came to Clinton as a young minister in 1861, and although the town did not have as many as four hundred inhabitants as late as 1880, he had in the meantime built up a strong Presbyterian Church, founded the Orphanage which perpetuates his memory, and shaped the beginnings of the Presbyterian College of South Carolina.

After Dr. Jacobs came to Clinton in 1861, there was an active interest taken in education. The Clinton Academy building in 1872 was offered by its owners to the Clinton High School Association organized for the purpose of furnishing better educational advantages. This organization continued to conduct a community school supported by private funds until 1880.

In 1880, an organization was formed of the pastor and officers and some members of the First Presbyterian Church of Clinton. This group was granted a charter in July, 1882, by the Clerk of Court of Laurens County with the right to adopt its own by-laws and confer the usual college diplomas and degrees. The first catalog states that the buildings were neat, well located and comfortable, but scarcely sufficient for the purpose for which they were intended.

The teaching force began by operating two separate and distinct schools under one management. This charter provided that, "the Clinton College Association is hereby made a body incorporate and politic consisting of the pastor, elders and deacons of the Clinton Presbyterian Church and any other church or churches that may be formed from it located in the Town of Clinton and in connection with the Presbyterian Church in the United States and their successors duly appointed; of such ten other persons resident in or near the Town of Clinton as the said Association may associate with themselves; and two persons from each Presbytery in this State." The charter also said that, "the Association shall have the right to confer all degrees and diplomas usual in colleges as may be recommended by the faculty of the Presbyterian College of South Carolina and the Clinton Collegiate Institute for Young Ladies." These were in reality one and the same.

From this it appears that it was originally intended that the college should be an institution for the Presbyterians of the State. The courage and determination of the founder of this school appear most admirable in view of the fact that the Presbyterians in South Carolina had been unable after many efforts to maintain a school of higher learning within the bounds of the State. The influence of such men as Dr. Thornwell, whom young Jacobs admired greatly, but who was opposed to the church's engaging in secular training, did not deter him from these aims which are now so harmonious with the spirit of the entire church. Certainly this was a vision attended with great hope and faith. Many minor changes and adjustments were made and expedients were employed necessary to accommodate the enterprise to indifference, opposition and misunderstandings.

The college with its appendage, the preparatory school, had in 1882, Prof. W. S. Lee in charge of the college department, Rev. Z. L. Holmes assistant and in charge of the preparatory department. There was a primary department with Mrs. M. A. Lee in charge, while Miss Pattie Thornwell taught music. There were ninety pupils in attendance. The next year, Prof. J. H. Colton was a teacher in the preparatory department. The first graduating class had three members, among them Dr. Jacobs' daughter, Miss Florence L. Jacobs, who was followed in succeeding years by her four brothers who also graduated from this institution. At this time the entire expenses, including board and tuition, were $100 payable in advance. This amount was the rate for about fifteen years. Professor Lee continued to serve the college until 1889. Rev. R. P. Smith was President in 1887, and Prof. Edwin L. Barnes was a member of the faculty from 1885 to 1887. In 1884,

Samuel P. Fulton graduated. His services as missionary to Japan, as well as his ability and spiritual-mindedness, will always be remembered.

In 1888, Mr. John W. Kennedy became President and served till his death two years later. Prof. W. S. Lee entered his last year of connection with the school. W. J. Martin, Jr., now President of Davidson College, taught this year. He was succeeded by R. R. Stevenson. R. K. Long of Batesville, Arkansas, was added to the faculty in January, 1910. Forty-one students were classified as belonging to the Collegiate Department.

The title of "Presbyterian College of South Carolina" had been substituted for "Clinton College by 1890;" the courses and instruction were modeled along the lines in use in other colleges; many young men were being prepared to enter professional training in medicine, the ministry, etc., a number of Presbyterian ministers were now listed as alumni; and a dozen ministerial students were in attendance. However, the control as well as the ownership was local and the College had no separate campus or buildings for its exclusive use.

The next fifteen years, from 1890 to 1905, were years of difficulty. Those who stood by the institution during this period deserve the appreciation of the church for giving themselves to the discouraging and apparently forlorn struggle to preserve the school's existence until the change of time and sentiment should secure it as a part of the essential work of the Synod as a whole.

J. I. Cleland was President for three years, from 1890 to 1893. He was succeeded by Rev. E. C. Murray whose presidency lasted till 1897. D. M. Frierson, who afterwards taught so long at the Presbyterian College at Batesville, Arkansas, was Professor of Mathematics and Natural Science till 1896, when L. L. Campbell served for one year. Mr. J. B. Townsend taught English and Chemistry in 1892-1893. Dr. W. H. Young gave instruction in Physiology and Hygiene for two years before 1893. Rev. J. F. Jacobs became Professor of Biblical and Religious Literature, Ethics and Hebrew in 1890. He was also financial agent and secured the erection of the structure now called the Alumni Hall, besides a small refectory and professor's residence. Mr. Jacobs and his wife managed the dormitory and dining hall, while he taught till 1896. Dr. W. S. Bean who had come to Clinton as editor of the Southern Presbyterian, began his connection with the College in 1892. He was a most learned and cultured gentleman. His relations with the College continued until his death in 1920. In 1896, the Martin brothers joined the faculty, S. T. Martin and A. V. Martin. The former died soon afterwards with pneumonia. The latter, after an intermission, returned to the College and has steadfastly given himself as one of those by whom the College was kept alive and at last made illustrious.

Prof. A. E. Spencer, known and honored throughout the Southern Presbyterian Church as a great and devoted Presbyterian Elder, became President in 1897, and served as such till 1904. He came to the College from the Reidville school in 1889. He has served three times as President and taught Greek and French and other subjects in the institution for 39 years. During all these years the responsibility for the institution has frequently rested upon his shoulders. His tact and temperate judgment have been as valuable as his teaching skill. No tribute or explanation could convey a proper sense of the devotion and worth of Dr. Spencer as an administrator and instructor. While engaged in the task of teaching he directed the financial and administrative affairs of the College in the midst of great difficulties. He fully merited the appreciation repeatedly expressed by the Synod of South Carolina.

Dr. Spencer was President while Rev. W. T. Matthews was Chancellor for two years, from 1898 to 1900, who was followed in the same office by Rev. J. H. Thornwell whose enthusiasm and personality did much to spread the sentiment in the church for taking over the institution by the Presbyterians. The office of Chancellor was intended to be a means of publicity and of securing financial aid.

Mr. A. W. McWhorter served the College as Professor of Latin for several years, beginning in 1897. During many years, before this and afterward, Dr. J. J. Boozer, a beloved physician of the community, furnished instruction in Physiology and Hygiene. Dr. J. W. Davis taught the same subjects several years and has remained the College physician to the present time. Rev. M. G. Woodworth taught English two years, beginning in 1902. After an intermission of two years he came back in 1906 and still continues with the College.

When the Synod came into possession of the school in 1904 the traditional and customary features of a college had already taken on their familiar forms and interests; two literary societies had been engaging in declamation, debating, oratory and such like exercises for many years. The Eukosmian society had been founded in 1883. Another was in existence about the same time. The Philomathian society came into existence in 1894. Two Greek letter fraternities were in existence at one time, but these were forbidden and went out of existence till permission was again given for their opening in 1916. Two college journals were issued by the students, or rather a journal under two names, The Journal in 1893 and the Palladian in 1894. Volume 1, No. 1 of The Educational Journal of South Carolina appeared March, 1890. It was to be published monthly under the auspices of the Presbyterian College of South Carolina. D. M. Fulton was editor. Its first list of contributors were: Wm. P. Jacobs; W. M. Grier, President of Erskine College; A. Coke Smith, afterwards Methodist Bishop and brother of Senator E. D. Smith; S. Lander, founder of Lander College; Prof. H. P. Sanders; J. G. Clinkscale. A Young Men's Christian Association had more than a formal existence from the beginning. It was a very active and stimulating organization in the religious experience of the campus. The literary societies in the beginning owned a collection of books. From time to time donations from Prof. J. R. Blake, Dr. W. E. Mellwaime and others are noted. As a result a library was gradually accumulated. The college degrees offered and the quality and extent of the work required for graduation were given more serious attention as time passed. The older men who were in charge of the institution were inclined toward the older and dignified discipline of the classics with some additions of Philosophy and general science. The young men who joined the college from time to time as professors brought not only youthful spirit, fresh ideas, but new contact with the academic usages and branches from their own Almae Matres. The degrees of A.B., B.S., and M.A. were offered. Very early it was A.B. for young men and "A.M.," which was explained as "Mistress of Arts," for girls who might substitute French for Latin in securing it. This degree did not last long. It was later, along with the usual college degrees, offered for study conforming to the conventional and prevailing usages.

Those who took partial or complete courses in the twenty-five years up to 1905 had become well known and influential in many cases. There were alumni filling reputable positions in all walks of life. As the school was co-educational and so continued until 1920, many women received training here. The female graduates were mainly of the local patronage. All these men and women formed quite a respectable alumni showing for a school that had been so long a local and personal enterprise. Perhaps, more than a thousand altogether had been under its instruction during this first quarter of a century prior to the Synod's assumption.

In 1882, the college as well as the preparatory school had buildings in the northern part of the village. In 1886, the college department moved into a building on the Thornwell Orphanage grounds. For this the first thousand dollars was subscribed by Mr. M. S. Bailey and J. W. Copeland, Sr. This structure was purchased by the Orphanage in 1905 and named the McCall Building. Mr. Copeland also with Mr. Newton Young gave the sixteen acres of land that formed the nucleus of the present campus. Upon this was erected Alumni Hall. The funds for this were secured by Rev. J. F. Jacobs from Presbyterian congregations and members throughout the State. Here a residence also was erected. These two were used by students as dormitories as well as residence by professors. Up to this time nonresident students boarded in town. A frame dining room and kitchen stood near the Alumni Hall. These three buildings, the sixteen acres of land and the McCall building on the Thornwell Orphanage campus constituted the college property as it came into the hands of the Synod.

The corporate body that owned the college was named in the first charter in 1882. This charter was modified in 1889 so that two trustees might be appointed by each Presbytery. The local trustees were reduced to nine. The Presbyteries one after another had gradually consented to appoint trustees so that all six Presbyteries of the Synod were represented on the board in 1903, when there was a second change of charter. The Synod declined in 1896 to take ownership, but gave a most cordial endorsement. The reluctant but final consent to make the college unequivocally Synodical in 1904, was expressed in the charter of February, 1905, which was the charter of the college till 1929. The college once again altered its relation within the church. In recent years it has been evident that adequate support and patronage must be supplied by a larger background of church membership than formerly thought necessary. In 1928 the Synod of Georgia united with the Synod of South Carolina in the ownership and control of the college, thus strengthening its resources and field of service. In conformity to this plan the charter was again revised to meet this change.

Dr. W. G. Neville took the presidency of the Presbyterian College in the fall of 1904, but his task was no easy one. His incumbency was attended by a Synod-wide unity, but also with a Synod-wide ignorance of the cost of higher education. There was a fair and delightful promise of success, but a realization of the necessary financial outlay implied in the ideals of the Synod was most remote. The announcement that an endowment of one hundred thousand dollars and a building fund of fifty thousand dollars to be completed by 1908 at the present, appears naïve as it now requires almost the former amount for annual expenditure. Yet this project was a most ambitious one at that time. Within four years the campus was more than doubled in acreage, the building on the Orphanage campus sold; a remarkably well-planned Administration Building was constructed; a President's home and several residences were erected by 1909; Judd Dining Hall was finished as the result of a gift of $5,000 by Mrs. E. A. Judd of Spartanburg and $2,000 by the people of Clinton; Laurens Hall, a dormitory, represented the generosity of the Laurens people; Clinton citizens had already contributed $20,000 to the building program and campus; Rev. J. C. Shive had been employed and was most successful as financial agent.

These improvements were inaugurated by Dr. Neville who did not live to see them finished. His sudden death was a severe loss, checking the confidence of the friends of the college and leaving an atmosphere of uncertainty and some discouragement for the following five years.

Dr. Robert Adams was called to the presidency from his church in Laurens and served till 1910. Dr. Adams undertook the presidency at a most difficult time. The spirit of discouragement seemed to pervade the Synod for several years. Not only were trustees continued in Davidson College by most of the Presbyteries but appeals for funds were constantly made and contributions through the regular channels within the Synod for Church and Christian Education were still shared with that institution. The competitive canvass for students was also kept up till sometime after Dr. Douglas came in 1911. Thus, entire allegiance to the Synod's college was deferred till after Dr. Adams' time. Dr. Spencer was acting President for a year after Dr. Adams' resignation.

In 1904, Bothwell Graham, Jr., began his connection with the college with which he has remained to the present. C. T. Cunningham taught English and History one year, 1905-1906. In 1908, J. Wideman Ligon was added to the faculty. He remained two years. John S. Henry taught Mathematics and History during the year 1909-1910. Dr. Neville taught the course in Bible, as did Dr. Robert Adams, in connection with his administrative supervision. In 1910, the important element in the curriculum, namely instruction in the Bible, came into the hands of Dr. D. J. Brimm, formerly professor in Columbia Seminary. His gifts as a teacher and his learning in the Scriptures have made that department a special feature of this institution.

It was most courteous and fitting that Dr. Jacobs should have been elected by Enoree Presbytery as a trustee. He was made also President of the first Board of Trustees from the Presbyteries. He was succeeded by Dr. S. C. Byrd to whom no adequate tribute can be given as a moving spirit, not only in securing the college as a Synodical institution, but as an unfailing and active friend of Presbyterian education for many years. More than casual mention should be made of another President of the Board of Trustees, Dr. Alexander Martin. His staunch loyalty and sound judgment have been invaluable. He was elected trustee of Bethel Presbytery and has remained such to the present time. His influence and his counsel have been of highest consideration in the conduct of the affairs of the college. The college has been most fortunate in its Board of Trustees who have been sympathetic and interested in the work and life of both professors and students.

It was at the suggestion and persuasion of Dr. W. M. McPheeters that the Presbyterian College secured the able services of Dr. D. M. Douglas, who came to the presidency from the Maryland Avenue Presbyterian Church of Baltimore. Very soon after he entered upon his exclusively administrative duties in August, 1911, his sanity, honesty and foresight had secured not only the confidence and admiration of the Presbyterians, but the regard and interest of the general public of South Carolina.

Within his first year's tenure the physical and financial resources were greatly increased. Mr. Chas. W. Leavitt of New York, a landscape artist of national reputation, laid out a plan of grounds and buildings, "with dormitories designed to accommodate eventually a large number of students; two science halls, library, chapel, athletic field, and everything else which pertains to the equipment of a first-class college." Since then, this ambitious and courageous plan has been largely realized. Spencer Hall was built during the second year from funds raised by Dr. Douglas in Chicago and New York and from gifts received in Clinton, as well as from Col. Leroy Springs, Mr. David Carmichael and Mr. Henry McHarg. In 1915, the W. P. Jacobs Science Hall and Library was erected at a cost of something over $10,000. In 1916, a central heating plant was built. This cost $12,000 and was partly the gift of Mr. George Cornelson. In 1924 the Smyth dormitory and the LeRoy Springs Gymnasium were erected, the former named for Dr. Thomas Smyth, whose son, Capt. E. A. Smyth gave $25,000 toward its erection, while Col. LeRoy Springs sustained the entire cost of the gymnasium of $100,000. In 1929, Col. Springs completed the swimming pool at an additional cost of $50,000. In 1928, W. J. Bailey of Clinton, S. C. made possible the erection of the $25,000 Stadium in honor of William Cyrus Bailey by the contribution of $10,000. Then in 1929, Mr. John H. Young gave the splendid President's home as a memorial to the late George Young. Private benefactors have increased and the friendship of the private membership in the churches of the Synod has been secured.

Walter A. Johnson whose reputation is wide and whose services have been sought by so many other institutions, began his leadership in the athletic department in 1915 and continuous to the present with L. S. McMillian who entered as assistant coach in 1924. For the past few years, H. L. Eichelberger has been assisting in the coaching.

In 1911 when Dr. Douglas came to Presbyterian College, there were eighty students, about half of them doing strictly college work. There were young women as well as young men. While the college has never definitely refused to receive young women into its classes, the number applying for admission gradually declined and finally ceased. The student body has grown until it now has nearly 300 students. The library has more than 12,000 volumes. The curriculum is designed not only to meet the needs of ordinary, literary and scientific requirements, but to furnish free medical and other preparations for graduate work. The college keeps in mind the aim of emphatically Christian education and devotes itself to training a large number of men for the ministry and other positions in the church.

In 1926 Dr. Douglas resigned from Presbyterian College to accept the presidency of the University of South Carolina. Dr. A. E. Spencer acted as President until the summer of 1927 when

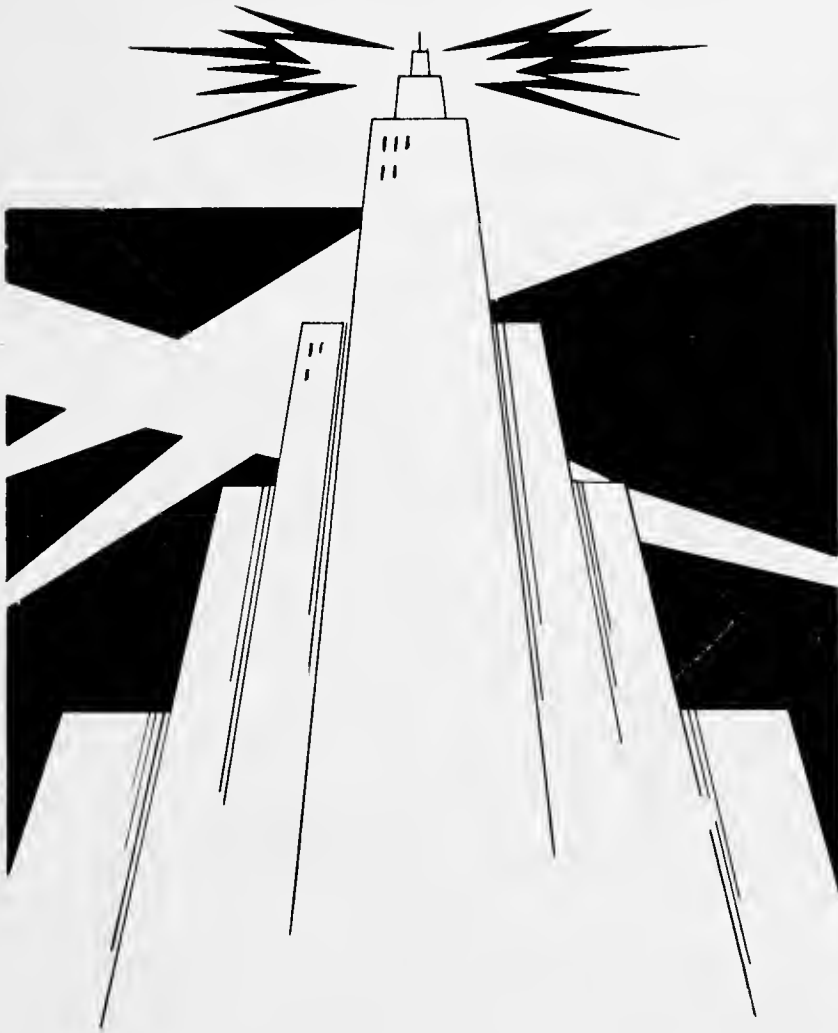

Dr. B. L. Parkinson of University of South Carolina accepted the presidency. He was President for one year only, resigning in 1928 to accept a position in the State Department of Education in Alabama.

The college was very fortunate in securing as its President Rev. John McSween who entered on his duties in September, 1928, and immediately applied all his energies toward the removing of the indebtedness of the college which had accumulated to the amount of $375,000, due mainly to the failure to collect the subscriptions of the million dollar campaign. So far, about half of this amount has been secured. President McSween has shown himself to have all the capacities of a superior administrative officer. He has all the gifts that make him a born President of the college and has lived up to his consecration to relieving this college of its indebtedness and putting it in the front rank of denominational institutions in the South. He has a thorough understanding of young men and sympathy with them in their problems, his high ethical standards and his deep religious influence exercise a salutary influence over the students and he enjoys the love, respect and admiration of the entire student body.

To the teaching staff of recent years, much credit is due towards Presbyterian College's admittance into the Southern Association of schools and colleges. The faculty is composed of men of approved educational advantages and they have proven themselves as skilled teachers. In addition to the names already mentioned, the following faculty list with changes is the complete roll of professors in recent years: N. L. T. Nelson, 1912-1914; A. N. Young, 1913-1914; A. C. Cartledge, 1913-1915; J. B. Kennedy, 1913 to the present; A. R. McLaughlin, 1914-1916; C. B. Bailey, 1916-1917; Rev. E. H. Pressley, 1916-1917; St. Clair Hays, 1916-1918; 1929 to present; Horatio Hughes, 1918-1919; W. E. Hoy, 1918-1929; Rev. F. D. Jones, 1919 to present; H. E. Sturgeon, 1919 to present; M. W. Brown, 1925 to present; H. T. Lilly, 1921 to 1926; A. T. Fant, 1922-1929; R. L. Coe, 1924 to present; R. J. Seeger, 1929 to present; H. T. Sweedenberg, 1929 to present. Since the establishment of the military department, the following officers have served: Major F. J. DeRohan, 1919-1920; Col. E. L. Glasgow, 1921-1929; Major C. S. McNeil, 1923-1924; Lieut. D. R. Nimmoicks, 1922-1928; Lieut. A. N. Taylor, 1928 to present; Capt. R. E. Wysor, 1929 to present. Aside from strong and inspiring personalities that has graced the recitation halls and who have quickened the minds of nearly three generations of students, the academic preparation of professors is suggestive. The men who have been on the teaching staff came with degree from: Davidson (16), Presbyterian College (6), Erskine and South Carolina Medical College (4) each, University of Virginia, University of Georgia, Vanderbilt, Johns Hopkins, University of Chicago, Hampden-Sidney (3) each, Harvard and Charleston (2) each, Centre College (2). Other professors have come from graduate work at Peabody, Columbia University, Wisconsin and other institutions of equal rank.

It is now the golden anniversary of Presbyterian College; it has existed for fifty years. It has a list of alumni whose names are now enrolled as part of the worthy citizenship and professional life of the State, and whose labors are fruitful and whose distinctions are creditable to the whole Presbyterian Church.

*'Mong Piedmont hills of old S. C.
There stands a college called P. C.
She's dear to me this old P. C.
Where every day is happy.*

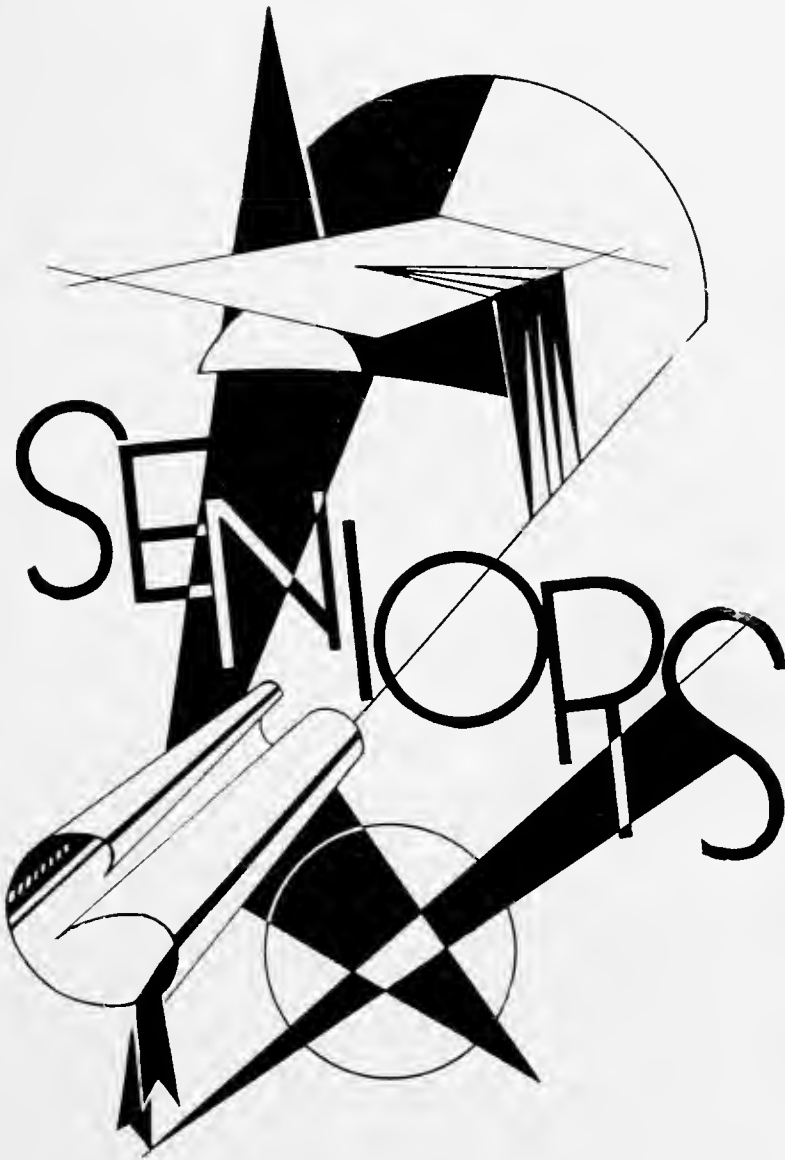

*P. C., P. C., how dear thou art to me.
P. C., P. C., we'll e'er be true to thee.
P. C., P. C., we'll ever sing thy praise,
We'll sing thy praise through all our days.

Senior Class Poem

*'Tis not alone in knowing what to do,
Nor yet the building of a perfect plan.
'Tis not alone the will to carry through
That is the truest measure of a man.*

*'Tis not achievement, just to learn alone,
But doing what we've learned—that is the best.
'Tis laying, day by day, another stone,
That builds the stairway of a true success.*

History of the Class of '30

By LOUIS R. WILLIAMSON

HISTORY IS, after all, merely the story of the struggles which man has made against nature, against an innate fear of the natural elements, and against the loves, hatreds, and desires of other men. Through it all, there has been one goal, toward the attainment of which, man has been working for thousands and some say—for millions of years. That goal is the revelation of Truth, revealed to man by the God who created him—a creature after His own image, made to love and serve Him until the consumation of the world.

Today, after the struggles of our ancestors, extending over a period of innumerable centuries; we stand a free people, rejoicing in our freedom, our knowledge, and our modernity, and looking toward the future with eyes that are filled with the joys of living and hearts that overflow with love for our fellow-men.

Thus it was that we were enabled to enter the sacred portals of this college as Freshmen, to carry burdensome trunks up countless flights of stairs, to post a multitude of letters, and to withstand the onslaughts of battle-scarred Sophomores in the place that is especially reserved for such things. Thus it was that we were duly initiated into the awful mysteries of secret orders and were oriented to the customs and traditions that have grown up on this campus through decades of habitation. For the Sophomore year, we cannot be too enthusiastic,—it was a kaleidoscopic year of football games, rat parades and lab periods—mostly lab periods. As Juniors we began to learn to prepare ourselves for the many duties and offices that were to be thrust upon us by the eager hands of the departing Seniors. As a class, we faced the problems that were before us with unflinching eyes. We felt that we had reason to be confident of our ability to carry on. Altogether, we think of our Junior year, as we review its high points, as a succession of colorful football games, basketball tournaments, battalion parades and Pan-Hellenic and Junior-Senior banquets and dances. Incidentally, perhaps we had better add that we also met classes our Junior year. The year passed quickly—as years will pass—and then we were—Seniors!

The astounding fact that we had at last attained to that class of earthly immortals known as College Seniors astonished even the most lethargic of us. Almost unbelievable but nevertheless—true. We approached the year with a feeling of trepidation mingled with a new sense of responsibility. Now, indeed, we were responsible for the actions of the underclassmen as well as for our own conduct. We took over editorships, captaincies and managerships with an air of profound knowledge and complete nonchalance. The months flew by. We strained every brain fibre, nerve and sinew in one supreme, last effort to exalt the fair name of our Alma Mater and to advance ourselves in thought, word and deed.

The date of graduation approached and we began to concentrate more seriously on the question that had confronted us for four years. After graduation—what? What were we going to do with our lives? What were we going to do for God—for our fellow-men—for ourselves? Those were the questions. And then we began to realize that out of the mental chaos into which our minds had been hurled by our years of study and absorption of knowledge; there must come to us an order of things and a definite philosophy of life: one that we would be able to place our hand upon at any time and say with conviction—"This is what I believe."

Thus it is that as we go out into the world to take our places as vital forces in its life, we have learned that our lives must be governed by love and not hatred, by altruism and not selfishness, and by belief and not unbelief in the things that are of God.

ISAAC McDONALD ADAIR

CLINTON, SOUTH CAROLINA

B.A.

Pi Kappa Phi

"Mac" Adair is forever smiling. A good-natured fellow with a friendly greeting always ready—humorous and amusing in a manner all his own—stubborn in his dislikes, yet loyal and strong to those who are his friends. On the basketball floor, Adair is a flash. His team-mates know him as a hard-working, if somewhat erratic, forward—a man who trains conscientiously and does not cut practices.

JOE ABNER BABB

B.A.

*Alpha Lambda Tau

A man who says he will do things—and then does them. As dependable as the day is long. Quiet and unassuming—never advertising his presence or his opinions—never seeking the limelight—Joe Babb. And Joe is as loyal as he is dependable. That these facts have been recognized by the student body is shown by the positions he has held: President of the Senior Class, member of the student council, President of the I.R.C. These, in themselves, are empty titles; yet they are of importance because they indicate the hearty indorsement of his associates.

I.R.C. President, '30; Corporal, R.O.T.C., '29, Second Lieutenant, '30; Assistant Advertising Manager Collegian, '30; Secretary and Treasurer Junior Class, '29; Student Council, '30; Assistant Librarian, '27, '28, '29, '30; President Senior Class, '30.

WILLIAM TOWNSEND BARRON

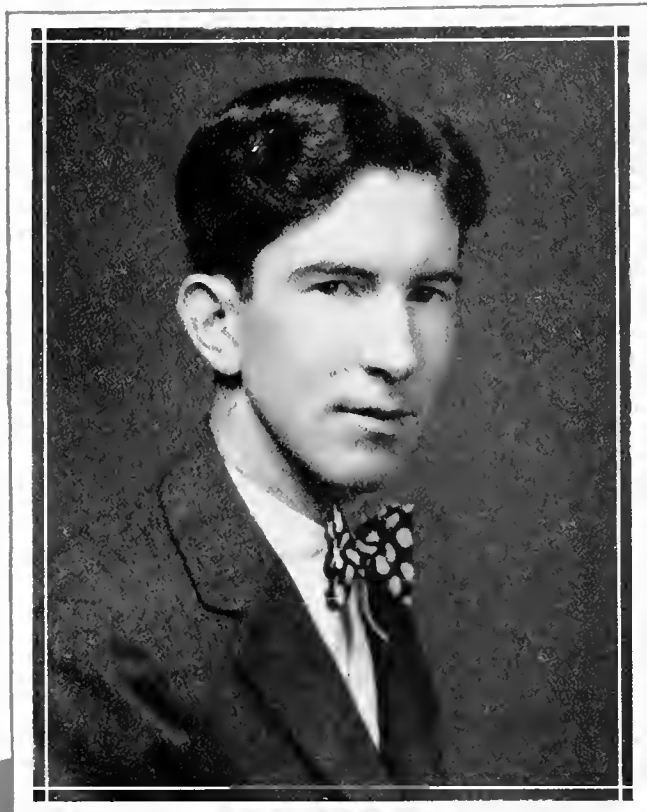

MANNING, SOUTH CAROLINA

B.A.

Pi Kappa Alpha

As President of the Y.M.C.A., Billy Barron has done a great service for Presbyterian College during the past year. By his resourcefulness and leadership he has improved both the attendance and the spirit of the organization. An example of this kind serves to emphasize the outstanding characteristics of the man—faithfulness, leadership, the ability to think, and the ability to make actions out of thoughts. Few men hold the respect and admiration of the student body in the same way in which they are held by Billy Barron.

B.A.

Alpha Kappa Pi

Sigma Kappa Alpha; International Relations Club

Beckham is not the best known boy on the campus. He is rather retiring by nature, yet those who are thrown with him can tell you that he is a warm friend and a helpful companion. At all times he exemplifies the qualities of the gentleman with his courtesy and consideration of those about him. Beckham is a good student, and one who prepares his work consistently and well.

The captain of a football team must of necessity be a man of strength and force—Dill Beckman was captain of the football team for the past season. Contrary to the popular idea of an athlete, Beckman makes good grades in his college work. About the campus he is known as a man who has a keen sense of humor. His efforts to appear hard-boiled do not succeed in fooling anyone except a stray freshman or two, and even these are not deceived for long.

JAMES CHARLES BRABHAM

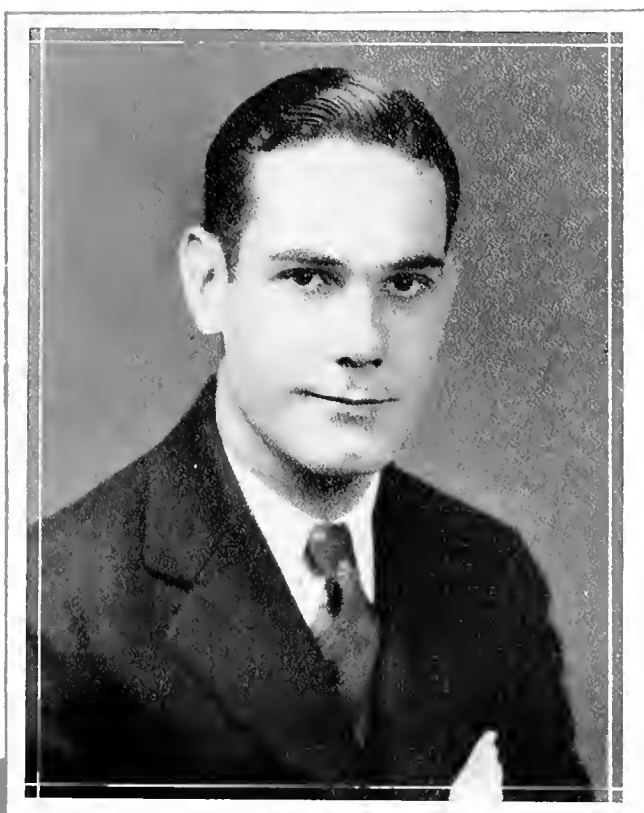

BAMBERG, SOUTH CAROLINA

B.S.

Chi Beta Phi

Although Brabham has been with us only a year, he is truly one of us. In every way he has adapted himself admirably to life at Presbyterian College, lending his talents to every organization on the campus that could use them. The art work of the PaC-Sac, as much of it was not included in the printer's contract, will stand as a monument to the hours of labor which he devoted to the interests of the year-book. He also worked with the orchestra and contributed to the success of that group. It is to be regretted that he could not have come to us earlier.

Entered from the College of Charleston, '30; Pre-Medical Club of South Carolina; Art Editor "PaC-Sac", '30; Corporal R.O.T.C., '30.

ROBERT BRICE CALDWELL

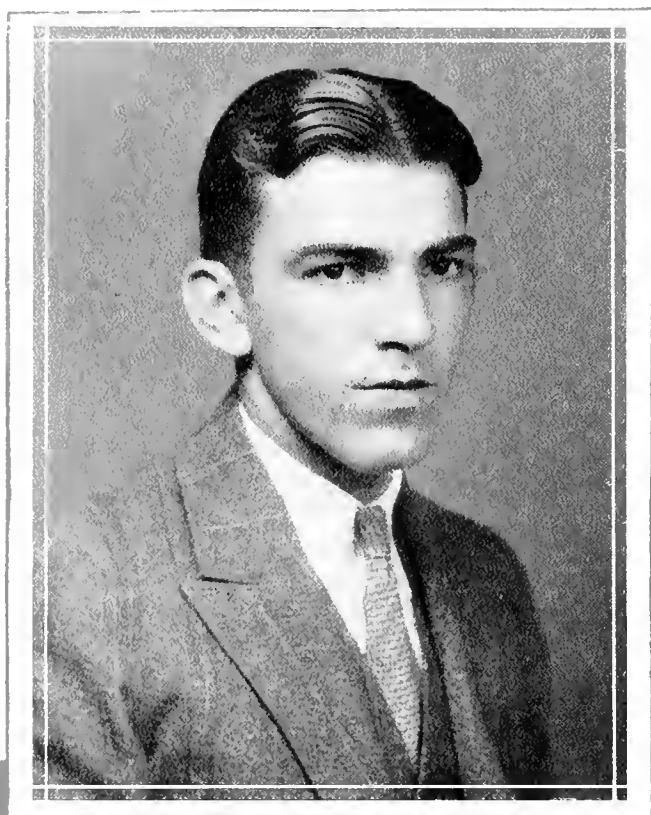

CHESTER, SOUTH CAROLINA

B.A.

A certain dignity and reserve accompanies Bobby Caldwell as he goes and comes on the campus—not the reserve of the condescending or superior know-nothing, but the reserve of the well-contained gentleman. Even tempered, easy-going, always well dressed—he is the type who leaves a distinct impression wherever he goes. But he knows when to unbend, too, for in his three years of varsity basketball he has shown the type of play that won for him, in his senior year, the captaincy of the team.

NEIL PRESSLY CLINTON

ROCK HILL, SOUTH CAROLINA

B.A.

Alpha Kappa Pi

Happy and happy-go-lucky—there is Neil Clinton in the proverbial nut-shell. He is a boy who does not smile; he grins. A smile indicates a sort of internal pleasure; but a grin takes that internal enjoyment and spreads it abroad for everyone to share. His best friends will tell you that there is another word that fits him like a Kuppenheimer suit—loyalty. To use a worn-out phrase, "when he makes a friend he stays made."

ALFRED EUGENE CLEVELAND

RICHBURG, SOUTH CAROLINA

B.A.

Cleveland, A. E. (to distinguish him from Cleveland, W. J.) is a wonder with an old Ford, or any other kind of engine, for that matter. He knows a remedy for all their ills, their failings, and their weaknesses. Another remarkable talent of his is the talent for explaining things—quite an explanatory genius. Rather stubborn, to state it baldly; but stubbornness can be called adherence to principles, so that is nothing against him. There is little danger of confusing him, in your mind, with anyone else. He's not that kind of man.

WILLIAM JAMES CLEVELAND

RICHBURG, SOUTH CAROLINA

B.A.

William James Cleveland, better known as "Little Cleve" made his appearance on the campus in the fall of '26. He became known to us during the Freshman year as a great star in track while he made a desperate escape from the man who became suddenly insane on the campus. There is always a smile and a pleasant word for everyone mixed with his wit and humor. He has proved his success in the "Latin Field" using at all times the best of translators. "Cleve" you are a true P. C. man and the Class of '30 wishes you much success throughout life.

Latin Club, '26, '27, '28, '29.

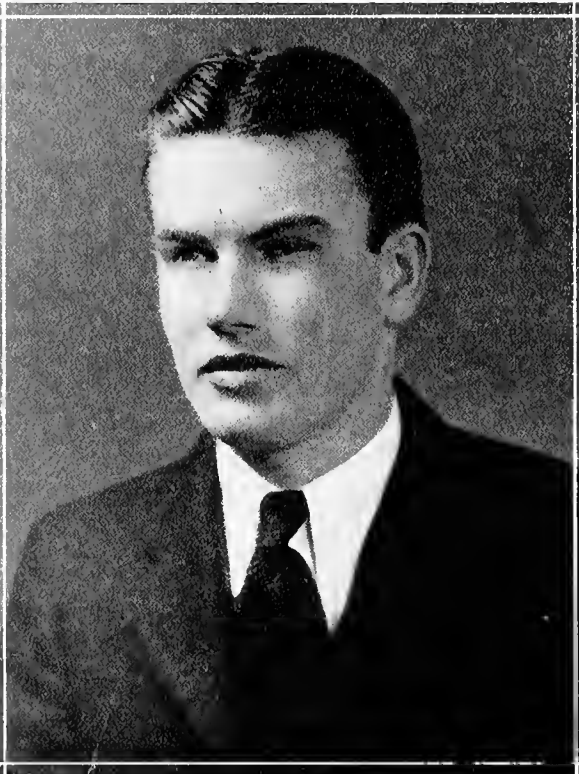

JAMES LAFAYETTE COOPER

LAURENS, SOUTH CAROLINA

B.A.

Cooper is a man of few words, and those few words are spaced widely in a plain of silence. To many he gives the impression of timidity, but the Cooper-timidity-theory was exploded in the squared circle of the boxing arena when the fat spark of aggressiveness touched off a pair of dynamic, flying fists. A man of many words may be saying all that he knows; but a man of few words gives the impression that there are hidden resources which are held for a purpose.

Bobby Crawford is Old Reliable himself. Through his steadiness and meticulous accuracy he navigated the Blue Stocking through a stormy year without loss—in itself a feat which will go down in history as a great and outstanding achievement. Add to that his successful management of the PaC SaC, and it will be apparent that students were not amiss when they voted him the best business man in college. A genial nature makes Crawford an easy man to get along with. He has won for himself a high position in the esteem of all with whom he has come in contact.

Membership in scientific, literary, and musical fraternities should indicate that Jack Dendy is a versatile and well-rounded man. He is. Jack is the type of man who puts his best into everything that he undertakes, and yet does not get excited about it. To paraphrase the poet, "he keeps the even tenor of his way." Jack has the capacity for sitting down and doing tedious tasks thoroughly and well—an unusual capacity, and one that indicates a prosperous future.

WILLIAM CLAY DENDY

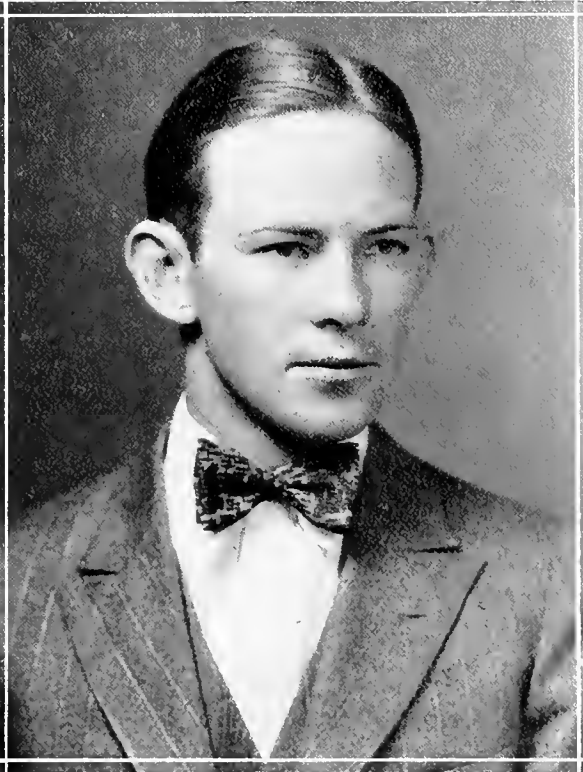

SENECA, SOUTH CAROLINA

B.A.

Lambda Phi Gamma

"Musically minded" is the best way to describe Clay Dendy, for he is a man who lives, breathes, and thinks in terms of music. Give him any kind of musical instrument and he will make it talk for you. Give him a little time and he'll teach you how to make it talk. Lacking music, he writes it—anything from te-tum-te-dum right on up to orchestrations. The Glee Club does not fall far short of being his personal product, and the R.O.T.C. band is just that exactly.

Talkative. Argumentative. B. H. Dickson will take either side of the case and give a masterful presentation—a masterful argument. His clever ideas and droll sense of humor make him an interesting speaker and an entertaining writer. Dickson is a man of ambitions, in a world where ambitions do not seem as common as they once were. He has definite ideas and he is out to cut a furrow, deep into the earth—well, why not? There are too many people who are content to simply smooth over the surface of their fields.

Here is an active and adventuresome mind—one that is forever probing some new project—revolving and digesting some new idea—looking for new interests beyond the immediate horizon. Every happening and every thought is a possible plot to Gray Ellis. His imagination builds intricate structures on the slightest of foundations. For such a man life can never be dull. Poetic, imaginative, and idealistic are the words which best fit the personality of this man.

CARLYLE DEVON FLOYD

MULLINS, SOUTH CAROLINA

B.A.

Some men are made to be dashing and careless—others are made to be studious and rather bashful. There is a place in the world for both types. "Moonbeam," as he has been affectionately called for four years, is the studious and the bashful. His class work never suffers for any reason. Floyd makes sure that one laborer is worthy of his hire, at any rate. Such a statement places him among the minority who actually try to learn something while they are at college. What a small minority it is!

People who know Tracy are cautious about making wise-cracks in his presence. The trouble is, you never can tell just what Tracy is going to use for a come-back. He was voted the wittiest man in college, and he is the wittiest man in college, too. Perhaps it was Tracy Flemming himself who first thought of calling himself "Lacy Trimmings". At any rate, the name has adhered, and a great many will always remember him as "Lacy". He is one of the most accommodating men alive. The campus will certainly miss him next year, for he cannot be replaced.

When you meet Dick Gillespie you know at once that you have met one of those fine boys who are scattered so sparingly about the earth. He is a delightful companion, an excellent student, an intelligent thinker, and a capable leader; and now the adjectives and nouns have all run out. It is hard to imagine Dick as a failure, because he lacks the qualities that failure requires. It is too bad that he had to finish in three years and a half—there are too few leaders and organizers on the campus anyway.

And from the Orient there came three brothers blessed with wisdom, virtue and honor. "Chip" is the third and last of the very remarkable line and we bid him good-bye with a reluctant hand as memories of his many accomplishments and the honor and glory which he has reflected upon our college, are brought back to us. As an athlete, he has distinguished himself upon the gridiron and track; as a scholar, he has ranked among the first three men of his class for four years and as a gentleman, he has left upon us the imprint of his stainless character.

A brilliant mind and the inclination to apply himself have combined to win for Jackson the highest scholastic honor of his class. Indeed, his record is not far below the best that has ever been made at Presbyterian College. He makes no attempt to disguise the fact that he is out to do perfect work, or the next thing to it. Unlike a great many boys, Jackson is not ashamed of the fact that he wants to learn something. He graduated in January and has been studying at the University of Illinois since that time. Personalities may be divided into three camps - positive, negative, and neutral. Johnson, W. E. (that's his Military Monicker) is positive. There is nothing to argue about there. Hermits are hermits and McQueen is one of them. It is not that he shuns people, for he doesn't do that—it is just that he doesn't mind being by himself. He makes a very pleasant companion, for he has a sunny disposition and an even temperament. He is a serious-minded fellow—not gloomy and pessimistic, but rather serious and thoughtful. A great point in his favor is that he rings the bell that liberates us from class. However, this is offset by the fact that he also rings the bell that summons us to class. Mirabile dictu!

Alpha Kappa Pi
Sigma Kappa Alpha

His name seems to be Charles Jennings Martin, yet they call him "Jack". Perhaps it is because when you look at him you like him, and when you like a person you instinctively want to tag him with some short abbreviated name. "Jack" doesn't let anything worry him, and yet he gets along remarkably well with everyone. He is willing to cooperate at all times. Good followership is almost as rare, if not equally as rare, as good leadership. A fine athlete and a fine student—that unbeatable combination again.

Some people can see a joke while it's still around the corner, and Flem Mason is one of them. He knows the good ones, too, and he appreciates the good ones when he finds them. The funny thing about Flem, though, is that he has spells of being light-hearted and spells of being serious. When he's happy he's the happiest fellow you ever saw, and it's contagious; but when he looks gloomy you'd never be able to guess that he ever laughs. Once you learn to know him, you like to hang around with him, just to catch the things he says.

Means is captain of the track team, and a two-miler. The first fact indicates that the cinder path men think he's a fine boy; and the second should tell you that he has a world of courage, endurance, and never-say-die spirit. Well, he's red-headed. What would you expect? Genial, friendly, and loyal—there is "Red" Means for you. He is a man you can tie to, and a man whom you naturally want to tie to. It can hardly be necessary to say more than this.

Once you have "Mike" Milam on your side, you may feel sure that you have a staunch friend who will stick with you till the cows come home. For his friends, he will do anything in the world within his power. However, there is a rather sharp discrimination, and one doesn't become his friend simply for the asking. By some, "Mike" is considered to be exclusive, but that is hardly the right word. He is merely following the old saying, "slow but sure." He has a smile that does wonders.

JAMES FREDERICK O'DANIEL

CLINTON, SOUTH CAROLINA

B.A.

One of the most likable boys on the campus. Tall, angular, slow, with a serious exterior and humorous interior decorations. But perhaps "humorous" is not the right word—"funny" is better. Easy to get along with—easy to do anything with. "O. D." is gregarious and he loves a big gathering where everyone lounges around and swaps stories by the hour. A trifle lazy, but who isn't? The difference is that some folks can get away with being lazy and others can't. "O. D." can. He's a fortunate guy.

Earl Perry is quite the sheik. Catch him when he's all dolled up and has his hair slicked down and you'll know what that word really means. He doesn't talk a great deal, so no one knows just what happens when he leaves the campus—but he goes off rather often and one rather supposes that there is a girl in the case. However, Perry is a baseball player, too, and a good enough player to be captain of the team. You can't hold sheiking against a man when he can do other things along with it. He has a quiet humor about him that makes people like him.

B.A.

Rhodes is given to meditation. A serious-minded youth. One glimpses the serious expression that he habitually wears and halts amid the glamorous pleasures of life to take thought of the morrow. It must be that continual philosophizing on the problems of this frail existence has a detaining effect, for "Dusty" always puts in an appearance, anywhere, just a trifle later than anyone else. However, in the checkerboard pattern of humanity, one must have thinkers as well as doers. "Dusty" fills a little niche that is all his own.

Well, "Cholly" Rigby is a born "Cholly". Friendly, gregarious, likable, casual, absolutely open and above-board—and there you are. From the something over two hundred boys in college this year, Phil Roberts was chosen, by ballot, as the most popular. It was a well-deserved honor, for Phil's popularity is not due simply to qualities of the typical "good fellow," but to qualities of leadership, friendliness, straightforward honesty, and good common sense. He is head of more organizations than any other man on the campus—principally because students are confident that he may be relied on to carry out his duties with regularity, tact, and sound judgment. A man you may be proud to call your friend.

A boy whom it is hard to really know. Intimacy depends on the constant interchange of ideas, and on constant association—hence not many are truly intimate with Charles Senn. It is nothing against a man, however, that he is not gregarious. Some are, and some are not—that is all. It takes all kinds of people to make a world, and who may say that one kind is better than another? Senn is a conscientious man who works hard and studies hard. George Telford is argument personified. Argument is the breath of his life, the substance on which he thrives, and the root of his enjoyment. However, it must be conceded that he does not argue simply for the sake of argument, although if he did there would be nothing wrong with that. He argues because there is something which he considers important at stake. When defeated, he does not mind admitting defeat; but, conversely, he will not admit defeat until he has been defeated. There is no giving up before the decision. He is sincere and dependable—you may count on him to do what he promises to do.

He has caused palpitation of the heart on more than one davenport, and is destined (we dare say) to cause the same trouble on a few more. A queer mixture, is "Granny" Thornton. One day he is as level headed as a judge—the next he is just plain crazy. The queerest part of the mixture, though, is that, level-headed or crazy, you are irresistibly drawn to him and compelled to like him. He has an engaging way of telling his friends of his troubles, and who can help liking a fellow when you've helped him, or think you've helped him, out of a difficulty?

*"Be sure you're right, then go ahead,"
'Tis rumored Davie Crocket said,
But if success's door should close,
As if it were right on your nose,
And knocks and pounds won't get you through,
But only leave you bruised and blue,
And still you're not behind it,
Don't waste your time to pound and knock,
For there's a key to every lock.
Just set about to find it.*

Junior Class History

By T. M. JOHNSTON

THE FALL of 1927 found assembled the present Junior class eighty-six strong, with all the enthusiasm and pep possible for a new rat class at P. C. In three days we were settled down to the routine of college life. Then came the upper classmen, with palmettoes, long standing hazing customs, and lastly, the night of rat run. How we lived through it, we still wonder, but as we glance back, we are proud of this as the beginning of that P. C. spirit which had its origin those first few nights of our college life.

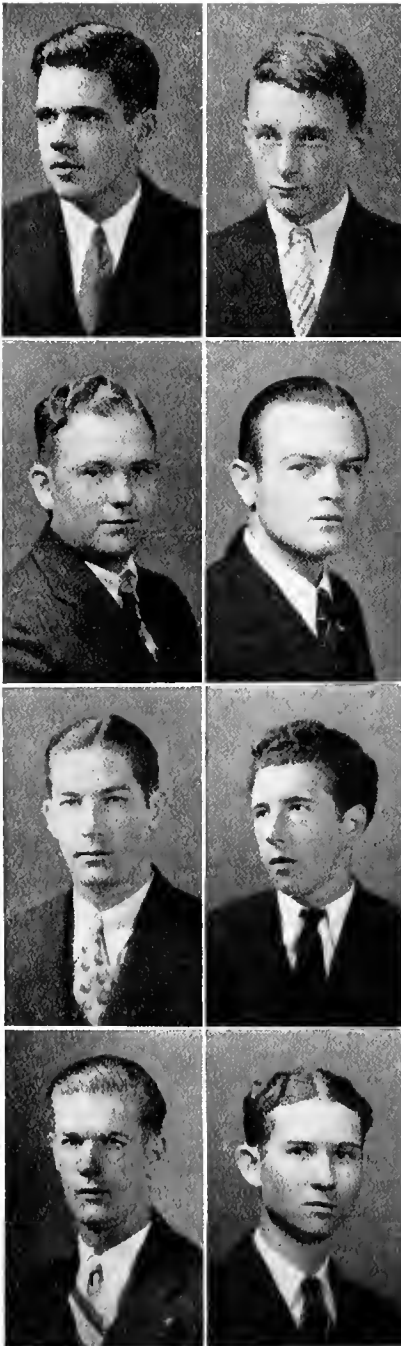

With the opening of the football season came the knowledge that the Class of '31 had athletic material that was to rival any single class in the history of the school. We came through the season with flying colors, made a fine record in basketball, and closed our first year by winning the state track title.

In the second year, our class put the new rats through the paces and then turned its thoughts to football. Six men made the varsity and in all other sports had full share of the honors. Our president of the year before, Bernie Dunlap did not return. Beverly Young guided us through the sophomore year and its climax, winning the S. I. A. A. track meet was largely due to our class.

Now we are in our third year with Ross Lynn leading us. A few more months and we will be on the last paths that lead from college life. With a record of which we are proud, we hope to seal our last year and thereby leave in the P. C. hall of fame a record which we can return years hence and look with pride.

Sophomore Class Poem

*'Tis funny what changes a few months can bring.
'Tis funny how wise in that time one can grow.
Last year we were Freshmen, not knowing a thing:
Today there is little that we do not know.*

*We laugh at the Freshman, amused at him.
'Tis hard to believe we were ever such clowns.
We're really not angry when paddles we trim,
Though often our faces are darkened with frowns.*

*The erudite Junior we cannot but scorn.
He feels his importance, 'tis easy to see.
Day in and day out he is tooting his horn,
Pretending that he's more important than we.*

*The Senior we take as a matter of course.
And all the advice that he freely bestows
Is nothing but wind, though he talks himself hoarse,
Mere bunk that from Seniors most fluently flows.*

*We're Sophomores now, and there's no more to learn.
And yet we to fate most resignedly bow,
And hang around college with two years to burn,
And wait for the sheep-skin that we deserve now.*

Sophomore Class History

By G. C. ADAMS

HISTORY is a success in so far as it reveals the spirit of the times. As times change, so classes change, and as classes change, so the spirit of times changes; and the spirit of today is vastly different from the spirit a year ago. Ah! how good it feels to be a Sophomore! Or rather not to be a Freshman. After experiencing the very trying ordeal of upholding the honor of contumacious subjection for a year, we have entered the blissful realm of Sophomore lordship.

On returning, under bright cerulean skies, to the campus last fall to begin a second year of worthy history, everything seemed in a state of abstruse tranquillity until the Sophs began to meet each other. After a good "bug and howdy" all around, we took to look about us and lo! to our astonishment what do you think marred the beauty of the scenery? Rats, rats!!—a regular bevy continually coming in. Several rather casual glances were cast among the fellows. But glance was not the termination for "rat exterminators" were quickly on the unfortunate prey. An elaborate reception was planned for these audacious intruders; needless to say, it proved to be a very impressive procedure.

The Sophomore Class has a rather unenviable rating as one of little memerial strength, but quantity is helpless when pitted against quality. Honey is sweetest when in small amounts, you know. The present Junior Class excels in numbers; but as the name Junior actually implies, they are a collection of infants and yet have an abundance to learn. The Seniors are only just bearers of that title; and they assume a bombastic air of extreme dignity to show their class rank, though underneath the exterior there is doubtless a bacchanalian nature. The Freshmen—well, I will not say. Many pardons for deserting the original subject, but I was led astray by abstract thoughts.

There is no phase of life within our college walls which does not receive our loyal and willing support. In all societies and organizations, religious and social, we indubitably have strong representation.

Upon the athletic "field of battle" the class has made an excellent record. In the world of basketball and track several of our members have proved their aptitude and endurance; and from every indication the class has material of indispensable value amid the accomplishments upon the diamond.

In the completion of this second annual of collegiate pursuits, the class is proud of her attainments, her capabilities, and her prospects. Her attainments as a Freshman organization form a record of which we may be justly proud. Her capabilities, as one of the most determined Sophomore Classes yet seen form a fitting basis for unlimited pride and undying loyalty. And her prospects—Ah! Who can tell what spark of genius she may enkindle within her midst, lit by glowing ambition and avid desire of proving full worthy and lastingly appreciative of the noble reputation of our beloved Alma Mater? The coming years, although transcendental, loom up in the distance as a further insight into those pursuits which offer the nobler and better ideals of life.

Therefore, farewell, good past; welcome, ye present, and right well. O future, do we anticipate thee.

Freshman Class Poem.

*From miles around we came
To college at old P. C.
And the honor of her name,
Links the Class of '33;
To the truest form of college life,
And this class will e'er be true,
So fill your cup, here's life and luck,
O '33, to you.*

*We wear our Freshman caps,
Enter into all the fun;
Generously hand out matches,
And wait for our time to come,
Our time is not so far away,
And we'll regret when we are through,
So fill your stein, here's beer and wine,
O '33, to you.*

*Freshmen! Freshmen!
Thy glory we forecast;
And pledge a loyalty to you,
That shall forever last,
And after we have finished,
We'll honor the Garnet and Blue,
So fill your cup, here's life and luck,
O '33, to you.*

Freshman Class History

By J. E. OSMAN

AS VOYAGERS into strange lands, we the Class of '33 were launched upon a new sea in the world of life, when we came to Presbyterian College. We embarked one rainy September night, on this voyage aboard the good old ship P. C. The veterans aboard the old training ship staged a rat run for our benefit, and the rats ran, all kinds of rats, rustic rats, city rats, and wharf rats. The rats will long remember that run. It was the first baptism of fire, and marked the entrance into a hectic life aboard ship. A hectic life, and a hard one; but the making of real men.

Then came days of clear skies with fine sailing, and we all moved along in fine style. As the cool autumn days moved along, Bill Carr led his football charges through an undefeated season, and claimed the title for the charted sea of South Carolina.

Came January, and we reached the equator on the voyage. Here a terrific hurricane blew up, and tossed our craft about with fatal results to some easy going sailor lads of the upper decks, as well as the lower. After the storm had lulled, and noses counted, it was found that things weren't as bad as was expected. Yet fond parents waiting at the home pier got some serious shocks at this time. The storm lulled, and quiet reigned aboard ship.

The basketball team came through in fine style against neighboring crafts, and gave the old veterans aboard ship many a bothersome hour of scrimmage.

A phenomenon of interest was the unusual snowstorm suffered just after crossing the equator. What a time was had by all.

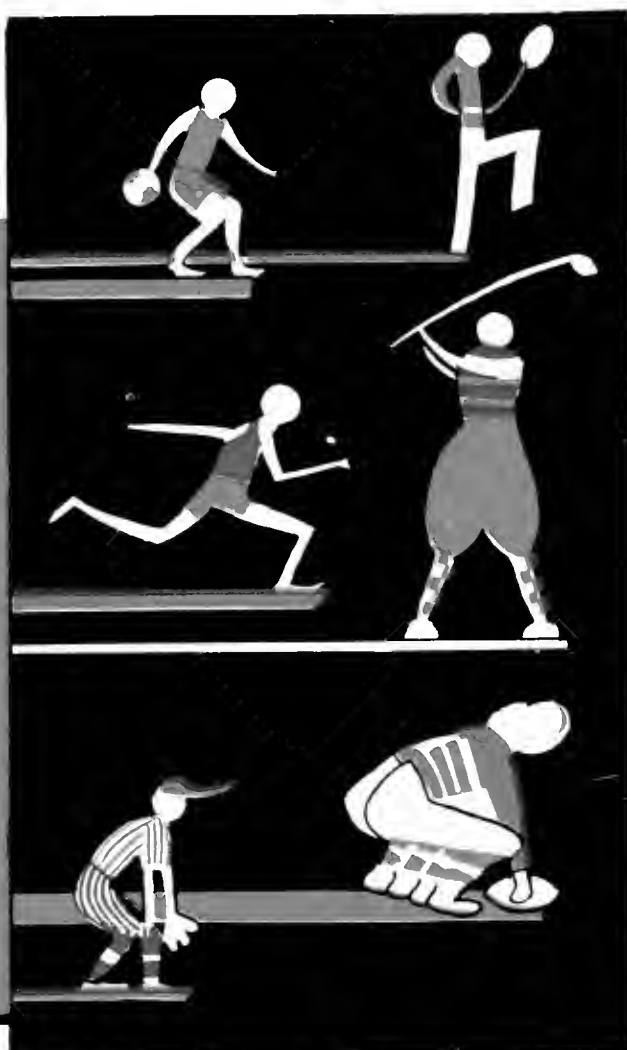

The days passed, and the good old ship P. C. sailed on across the sea of life carrying her charges along to new adventures, and new lands of interest.

Came the final weeks of the cruise with the course set for home. Full sail, ahead! Was the word, and all hands bent to the final sweep with a rather saddened head. A few clashes with neighboring craft and the track resulted in the good ship P. C., forcing the hostile craft to lower their flags.

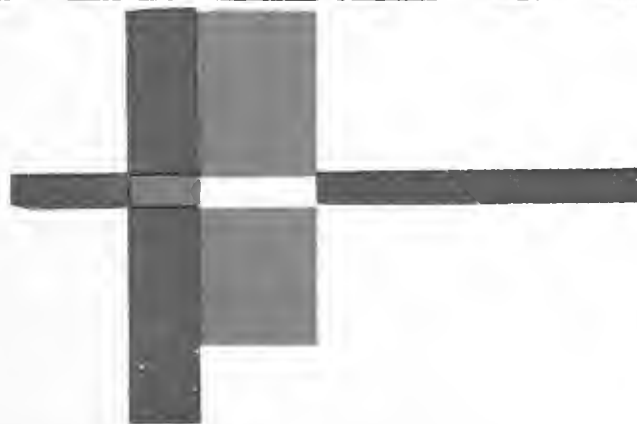

The final miles are here, the dim horizon of land is visioned afar. Before we can safely weather another storm, as great as the one on the equator blows up; hit the sailors, veterans all now ride her head on. We ride the storm out. The rocks are cheated of their prey. The sea calms. The home port looms to the starboard. The voyage is over, our friends greet us at the pier.

Then comes summer days, when we can revel in the past, and dream of the future. We await our embarkation on the next years voyage aboard the goodly ship, and true, Presbyterian College, with joy and anticipation. We'll be veterans then, and do things for P. C.'s glory.

The ATHLETICS

1880

W. A. JOHNSON
Director of Athletics

Coach Walter Johnson, loved, feared, and respected throughout South Carolina and the South is the man who puts on the field well coached teams; the man who has friends in every section of this State because he teaches his boys to fight hard and to fight clean.

To Coach Johnson belongs the honor of bringing athletics at Presbyterian College to its present level. Also through his untiring efforts Presbyterian College has an athletic plant that compares favorably with any University in the South. And in taking advantage of this plant Johnson, in the past few years, instituted several new sports so that now he probably coaches more sports than any other coach in South Carolina.

The graduates of Presbyterian College leave with the friendship of this man whom they love and respect, and later when they read of his achievements they tingle with pride at the success of their beloved friend.

Freshman Coach

Lonnie came here as a Freshman the same year that Walter Johnson came here as Coach. This was indeed a momentous year for P. C. to get two jewels so bright and rare. For indeed, Coach "Mac" is a peer among coaches. At preparing first year men for the varsity he is unexcelled, turning men over to Coach Johnson who have improved marvelously even in the short time of one year.

All of Mr. "Mac's" teams are noted for their fighting ability but especially is he noted for his Freshmen Football Teams and Varsity Track Teams. The Freshmen have always had winning Football Teams and the Varsity Track Team has won the S.I.A.A. Track Meet twice.

The name of Lonnie McMillian will never be without honor among graduates of Presbyterian College.

H. L. EICHELBERGER
Assistant Football Coach

"Eich" came back to his old Alma Mater in a time of need. While the other coaches had their hands full "Eich" took charge of the line. "Eich" is remembered as one of the fiercest tackles ever produced in this State. He and Mr. "Mac" made "All-State" when they played on Coach Johnson's famous Football Team of 1919. P. C. is very fortunate indeed to have so valuable a man as "Eich" on the Coaching Staff.

"DILL" BECKMAN
Captain

THE VARSITY SQUAD

1930

ROSS LYNN, End

In Ross, P. C. had its only all state man this year. Captain-elect for next season and one of the most valuable men around which the squad will be built. Lynn is outstanding in both offense and defensive play. He is one of the best ends that has played for the Blue Stockings and much is expected from him next season.

ASHBY GALLOWAY, Halfback

When triple threat men are mentioned, one thinks of "Skeet". He is fast, shifty, and a heady half; passes with either hand and is a good kicker as well as dependable for gains in a pinch. In the Erskine game Galloway received an injury which kept him out the rest of the season.

GUS BLAKELY, Tackle

A fierce, hard hitting tackle that struck terror in the hearts of the opponets. Gus is a clean, hard fighter, plays an aggressive game and is always dependable when a hole through the other line is needed. When bigger and better tackles are made, Gus will still be the best.

JIMMIE GREEN, Quarterback

Little, but fast and elusive. Here he comes and there he goes; that's Jimmie Green! He runs the team, kicks, passes, and when he carries the ball, P. C. can be sure of a good gain. Jimmie is one of the outstanding backs in the state. Several times last season he ran through the entire line for a touchdown. This is his third year.

ARCHIE CHEATHAM, Tackle

Archie is the Blue Stockings' other mighty tackle. With his size and weight it was indeed an optimistic opponent that attempted to pass through his side of the line. One of the main stays in the line this season and with two more years of football ahead, he should make an enviable record before graduation.

OTTO FERRENE, End

P. C. has always been noted for her big, little men. Such is Otto. Many a heavy back has run around the wings of the P. C. team only to be met by Otto; and the man stops there, too. For the past two years he has been on the job and next year should reach even greater football heights.

A. H. McQUEEN, Guard

Full of fight and never knowing when he is licked expresses "Mac's" work on the football team. He is one of the hardest fighting guards that has ever represented the Hose on the grid and is expected to fill a big place in making next year's line one of the best.

A. O. DUNLAP, Fullback

Snooks was the truck horse for the Hose backfield this season. Upon him depended most of the line plunging as well as stopping the rushes of the opposing teams. He did this well as is shown by some of the scores against teams he played. When it came to hitting the line, Snooks was called on and always came through with the goods. He has one more year at P. C.

1880

D. M. McNAULL, Center

Upon "Mac" fell the job of passing the ball back as well as holding his portion of the line. This was his first year at this position but he filled the bill like a veteran. McNaull played more than any man on the team and had a most successful season. He is a Soph. which insures P. C. of a good center for two more years.

PETE BENNETT, End

This red haired lad proved to be a streak on the P. C. wing. Pete can snag a pass if it is anywhere near him and this he did for many touchdowns during the season. On defensive play he is a safe bet and can get his man when the play swings around the end.

J. F. FORTSON, Center

Fortson can play guard and, if needed, will fill the position of center equally as well. His specialty is getting through the line and nabbing the runner before the line of scrimmage is reached. A hard fighter and an excellent lineman with one more year to make his football record complete at P. C.

JACK MARTIN, Tackle

Jack is the lightest tackle on this year's squad but to see him in play one could not guess it. He stops them, large or small. This is the last year for Jack and he will be missed in the line when the football season rolls around next fall.

1930

NEIL CLINTON. End

For three years Neil has been pulling for the team and this season is the first as a regular. He made good and held his position well in the games he played. Light but scrappy, he hit them hard and made P. C. a good end.

WALTER WALKER. Fullback

Speed brought his football career to a close by plowing over the line in the Newberry game to score P. C.'s final touchdown. For three years he plugged for a place and when he won it, he brought points for the team by his playing. Rather light for fullback, he made up for this deficiency by hard playing.

BEVERLY YOUNG. Quarterback

For the past two years "Bevo" has proved himself an able field general for his alma mater. Cool, steady under fire, an elusive ball totter, with plenty of ability tells the story of Beverly's football for this season. His unfortunate injury at mid season kept him from greater fame of the field.

R. D. RITCHIE. Halfback

With every game Bobby gets better. Look out for him next year. The fastest man on the team and a deadly pass snagger which will make him a dangerous rival and threat throughout the game. Once given a foot start he cannot be caught.

1930

J. E. MEANS. End

While "Red" did not get in the game much this season it was not because he did not pull for the team. Every year found "Red" in uniform when the call for football candidates went out and he played the game at all times with all he had and for the glory of P. C. with no thought for himself.

B. B. DUNLAP. Halfback

Bernie hit his stride in the latter part of the season. Although one of the lightest men on the team he could hit a line as many twice his size did. Elusive, fast on his feet, and a man that played "heads up" ball at all times. He is dynamite on the field and with two more years is sure to make an enviable record.

BILL SENTER. Quarterback

Bill is equally proficient at quarter and half. He is small, but oh, so fast and elusive. One can get hands on him but still Bill gets away for more yardage. He is also a good punter and will see much service next season. This is his Soph year at P. C.

K. L. HAMILTON. Guard

"Butterfly" is determined to make himself a good guard and that goal he has reached. He is a constant plugger and has shown considerable improvement during the past season. He will make a dependable lineman next fall and, as this is his second year he has some time to play for the Hose.

A Resume of the Blue Stocking Football Season

THE BLUE HOSE opened their 1930 football season with a 15 to 0 victory over the Lenoir-Rhyne Bears. Lenoir-Rhyne couldn't withstand the Presbyterians' deadly aerial attack and the fast end runs of Jimmy Green.

One week later the Presbyterian Blue Hose, smarting under the 7 to 6 defeat that Mercer gave them last year, sought revenge. And revenge was theirs as the flying feet of Orell Dunlap dashed down Johnson field behind perfect interference for 67 yards and a Presbyterian victory over Mercer. Much credit for this score must go to Green who clipped Alderman as he reached for the elusive Dunlap and to Galloway who spilled the Mercer safety, Matt. The Blue Hose forward wall played like heroes, led by Captain Dill Beckman, Gus Blakely and Ross Lynn. They repulsed brilliant Mercer attacks that seemed destined to score at least four times. It was a great victory over a worthy foe.

On October 11, the Blue Hose went to Greenville to entertain Furman's Purple Hurricane on their field. Walter Johnson's speedy Presbyterian eleven held the Hurricane scoreless in the first half but lost, after a magnificent struggle against odds in the latter half, 12 to 0. Furman's first touchdown was handed them almost on a silver platter, as their end broke through to block a punt behind P. C.'s own goal line and fell on the bounding oval for a touchdown. The game was marked by unusual roughness, for which Furman was penalized more than 50 yards.

The Blue Hose linesmen withstood such a pounding in the Furman game that it was unable to cope with the Gamecocks' assaults in the game the following week at Columbia. Not only were they crippled in this game but they were in bad shape for the next two or three games. Carolina had the Blue Hose backs covered while their own went on a rampage. Ross Lynn and Bennett, Presbyterian wingmen, were the best performers for the Blue Hose.

At Charleston, the Presbyterians presented a stubborn line of big, game Scotchmen and a pair of swift, perilous backs who used their might to harass and hamper the Citadel Bulldogs for the sake of Presbyterian College but the cadets overcame this Calvinist combine to win by 14 to 0. The dashing Green, often stopping only after more than one man had hit him, raced 60 yards once over the goal line after receiving a punt. It looked like he had a touchdown and a hush fell over the Citadel partisans, but the officials ruled that he had stepped out of bounds and the ball was brought back. The Presbyterians left an impression of a tough fight and a threat.

The Blue Stockings were nosed out by the Wofford Terriers on November 1, at the Spartanburg County Fair by the score of 13 to 6. The Terriers presented two drives that resulted in touchdowns and then settled down on the defense. The Blue Hose threatened continually to score but it seemed that the breaks were against them. Jimmay Green made one of the most spectacular runs of the season when he took the ball from a kick off on his own 14-yard line and raced swiftly through the entire Wofford team for a touchdown.

The Blue Stocking machine, a veritable smouldering volcano, burst forth, smothering Erskine's famed Flying Fleet with its fury to the tune of 44 to 7. It was a great day for the Blue Hose supporters as the flying feet of Green, Dunlap and Galloway, ran and slid through the mud for touchdown after touchdown, turning the game into a track meet. The Blue Stocking line, becoming conscious of its power, reveled in repulsing every attack of the Erskine backs. Ross Lynn and "Skeet" Galloway presented as pretty an exhibition of hard and accurate tackling as ever seen on a football field. The team worked with clock-like precision, every player doing his part. In the fourth quarter, Coach Johnson sent in his entire second team and they, led by Bernie Dunlap and Bill Senter, continued the savage attack to score P. C.'s final touchdown. Thus it was shown to the football fans in the state that Presbyterian's potential power had become real power and they were playing the class of football that they were capable of.

The Presbyterians next journeyed to Wake Forest to play the giant Wake Forest Deacons, who outweighed the Blue Hose more than ten pounds to the man. The battle waged back and forth with neither side being able to score. The smashing tackling of the Presbyterians who broke through their heavier opponents numerous times, was outstanding. Blakely and Cheatham showed some as pretty tackle play as has been seen in North Carolina this year.

In their last game of the season, their homecoming battle, and against their oldest rivals, Newberry, the Blue Stockings rose to greater heights and humbled their opponents by a score of 54 to 0 in a great, hard fought battle. To name the stars in this game would be to call the roll of the Presbyterian team, for every man acquitted himself like a hero. P. C.'s line worked magnificently. Captain Beckman played his last game for P. C. and played a good one. Both Cheatham and Blakely played havoc with Newberry's rushes, while Ross Lynn was down on every punt, in every play and going at top form. Bennett did pretty work, making two touchdowns and blocking end runs. This was a glorious end to Presbyterian College's football season.

"BOB" CALDWELL

THE VARSITY SQUAD

1930

ROBERTS, Forward

Phil is one of the best forwards and sure point makers on the squad. Give him the ball anywhere near the basket and he can be depended on for two points. He was out the first part of the year from injuries, but before the season was far gone proved himself invaluable.

ADAIR, Forward

Forward is "Mac's" job. He is little but fast and his shooting makes him one of P. C.'s best scorers. He is all over the floor and hard to guard. A good clean basketball player and on the squad since his first year in college.

CHEATHAM, Guard

In the history of basketball Cheatham has already, as a guard, made himself well known. He plays a daring and consistent game, breaking up much of the opposition's offensive plays and breaking through himself for occasional shots at the basket. During his next two years he will be in plenty of action and will most probably be considered one of the most consistent guards in the State.

LYNN, Guard

In the capacity of guard, Ross has proved himself a valuable asset to P. C.'s basketball team. He was unable to come out last year because of injuries, but this season his ability to cover the floor has made him one of P. C.'s best guards.

1880

GREEN, Forward

Green, that "fade away man" of the gridiron has also great ability to play a fast, tricky game of basketball. Just when an opponent thinks he has made a successful pass to his team mate "fade away" springs from some unknown place, intercepts that pass and like lightning he has tossed the sphere to one of the Blue Hosemen.

MASON, Guard

Clinton has produced many great guards who have made themselves known in the basketball realm, and the more they come the better they get. Mason is this late product and deserves the name "a real basketball guard." He has given four years of merited service in this game and now passes on to seek fame in the "game of life" outside the "college of colleges."

KEELS, Forward

In "Shorty" Keels, P. C. has a dependable and formidable forward. To offset the disadvantage of stature, he is always alert and quick, both on offense and defense. Everything considered, "Shorty" is one of the surest scores on the squad.

GOSNELL, Center

Cosnell as a center has pressed into the ranks of worthy basketball players. He plays a very smooth game either at a forward or a center position. His long reach enables him to tip that sphere just where it should be, and when "Goose" takes a shot at the netting the score keeper usually adds two points for the fighting Blue Hose.

1930

DUNLAP, Guard

Another worthy product of Thornwell Orphanage is Orell Dunlap. Orell plays a guard position and is highly commended for his very clever and brainy playing. His canny ability is especially displayed in his smooth floor work. Dunlap will surely be a "big gun" next year.

K. WYATT, Forward

Alternating between forward and center, "Dora" is proficient in either position. He is one of the most versatile players on the team—a good shot and a good floor man. He should aid P. C.'s basketball team materially next year.

McNAUL, Guard

McNaul who is only a Sophomore this year will, with a little coaching and experience, become the most potent guard in the state. If his capacity be developed his name will, without doubt, be placed among those of fame in the archives of basketball. He handles himself well, has the ability to dribble well, shoots accurately and quick, and passes with either hand in any direction.

COPELAND, Center

When Copeland is in the game, P. C. is always sure of getting the tip-off. This young Sophomore, lanky as he is, will be a genuine asset to the team next year. He also uses his height as an advantage over his opponents in dropping the ball through the net.

As Viewed by the Critics

Basketball Maroons Upset By Blue Hose

In one of the best games ever seen here Presbyterian College upset the dope to win over the quintet of the College of Charleston by a score of 59 to 50.—The Greenville News.

P. C. Defeats Newberry

Captain Caldwell and Mac Adair of the Blue Hose Varsity led the way to their team's first victory of the season.—The State.

Rally By P. C. Too Late

Getting a long lead in the first half and outspeeding the upstaters until the last few minutes of play, the College of Charleston defeated the basketeers from Presbyterian College tonight 40 to 33.—The Greenville News.

Presbyterians Defeat Maroons

The Blue Stockings grabbed an early lead, which was never overcome by the Maroons. Roberts' excellent shooting featured the first half.—The News and Courier.

Erskine Victor Over Stockings

Crackerjack game at Clinton last night. The contest was a close and rough one, but Erskine outpassed the P. C. boys. The game may be classed as the best the Blue Stockings have played this season.—The State.

Adair Is Star In Sox Defeat

Leading 17 to 13 at the half, the Presbyterians let the Cadets catch up with them early in the second and from then on it was a nip and tuck battle until Citadel bore down in the last four minutes to make the game safe.—The Greenville News.

Blue Stockings Defeat Wofford

Presbyterian College defeated Wofford last night in an interesting basketball game. Roberts and Adair, P. C. forwards, showed up best on the floor.—The State.

Blue Stockings Best Newberry

Presbyterian College took a scrappy basketball game from Newberry last night 38 to 32. Adair and Caldwell played stellar basketball for the winners.—The Greenville News.

Citadel Rally Trims Presbyterians

The going was very fast, with both teams using long passes which they hurled with much speed and occasionally depending on the dribble for the advances.—The News and Courier.

Hurricane Rallies To Beat Blue Stockings

Too much praise can not be lavished on the Presbyterians for their playing and especially what they did in the first half. In the attack and defense two figures stood out, Adair, a forward who made 10 points, and Jimmy Green of football and track fame. Gosnell, at center was doing his share. Adair is without a doubt one of the cleverest forwards in the State and all season has been the main cog in the Presbyterian play.—The Greenville News.

Blue Hose Defeat College of Charleston at Clinton

The Presbyterians took an early lead and were never threatened seriously. Lynn and Cheatham at guards and Roberts at forward, were the outstanding players.—The State.

Cadets Get Early Lead to Defeat P. C. 51 to 43

Adair was P. C.'s high scorer with seven field goals; many of which were from considerable distance. Caldwell, also, played fine ball.—The News and Courier.

Erskine At One Time Held a Lead Of 14 to 1

A new team substituted by Coach Johnson and led by the accurate shooting of Roberts resulted in a score at the end of the half of 27 to 22 in favor of the Fleet. Through the entire last period it was a nip and tuck battle.—The Greenville News.

P. C. Quint Cops Thriller From Newberry

The 1930 basketball season was closed here tonight with the Presbyterian Blue Stockings defeating the Newberry Indians, by the score of 42 to 35. Roberts, Gosnell and Adair did good work for the Blue Stockings.—The State.

B. B. DUNLAP, Featherweight

Bernie entered the fistic sport for the first time this year and came out with flying colors. He is another fast and illusive mixer and will probably make a name for himself in the next two years.

L. R. WILLIAMSON, Lightweight

Williamson is another who entered the roped square for the first time this year. He made a good showing and it is regrettable that this is his Senior year for he had a bright prospect of becoming a real leather pusher in the future.

A. H. McQUEEN (Captain-Elect), Middleweight

"Cyclone" who served as alternate-captain this season is one of the two veterans to return to the team. He probably had the classiest opposition in the state and through it all he came out with a good record. "Mac" packs a terrific blow and should be champion of something next year when he serves as Captain.

A. B. BLAKELY, JR., Heavyweight

Big Gus had the same amount of practice and experience that McQueen had when he engaged in his first battle. He did not win any but it was not because he wasn't giving all he had. Gus has fine prospects for his next two years of ring activity.

J. W. McQUEEN, Light-heavyweight

Bill entered the ring against Carolina with no experience and only two days' practice, but even under these difficulties, he made a good impression. Fighting under various handicaps the whole season, he showed that he had the stuff that goes to make a real man. This is the kind of men you hate to see graduate.

J. F. FORTSON, Welterweight

Fortson, while getting his first taste of boxing this year, made a most remarkable showing, losing only one of his three scraps and that by a very close margin to Wilson of Carolina. He packs a knockout blow in each hand and much is expected of him before he graduates in 1931.

PHIL ROBERTS

With his cool head work and sure hitting there was no doubt as to who would cover short this year. He has played brilliantly for three years and with added confidence from these successful battles he should make a strong bid for All State this season.

BOBBY CALDWELL

Bobby has again returned to the diamond after a prolonged sojourn upon the basketball court. His pitching for the last two years has been the mentor of opposing teams, and we feel sure he shall reach even greater heights during the coming season.

"BEVO" YOUNG

Young is one of the outstanding pitchers of the P. C. club. He has shown his ability also as a pinch hitter. By the use of his head and slow ball he won several close games last year. We expect much of him during the coming season.

JOE BABB

Joe came into his own in baseball last year and is sure to be a star this season. He is a sure fielder and has an exceptionally strong arm, whipping the ball from the outfield to home plate as fast as a bullet.

1930

1880

RICHARD ODIORNE

This lean, lithe, but hardly silent lad adorns the hot corner, holding it down in splendid fashion. His stickwork is far above the average.

ARCHIE CHEATHAM

Archie comes up from the Freshmen of last year to fill T. Greene's shoes at the initial sack. He is big enough to fill anybody's shoes and many a pitcher will be worried by that healthy swing of his.

ORELL DUNLAP

"Chuck-a-Luck" is an old veteran now, having been the tar-bucket in right-field last year. Dunlap always rises to the occasion, doing the impossible in both hitting and fielding.

FLEM MASON

Ossie shags 'em anytime, anywhere, and any place. He has saved many games by throwing his long, lanky frame into the air to bring down an elusive horsehide which seemingly was on the road to a Blue Stocking defeat.

1930

1880

"STUD" ROGERS

"Stud" is a very bright prospect for our team. We are in need of a good man for this position and feel that in him we have our need. He is as scrappy a receiver as we have.

ROSS LYNN

Ross will be cavorting around short-stop again this year. A dependable fielder with a strong arm and a mighty wallop. Fans will long remember when Ross "parked" the ball in the Newberry game.

ARLIE WILLIAMS

Another budding star has peeped from behind the horizon in the shape of a stocky little short-stop who "scoops 'em up" everywhere. He should go far in baseball circles.

ARTHUR COPELAND

This is another promising Sophomore. He is a real hitter and a sure fielder. Copeland will make the Blue Hose a valuable man in the future, and the opposition will have to watch this Clinton lad.

1930

ARTHUR McQUEEN

During his Sophomore year, "Mack" was used as a general utility man with a wallop. This wallop has been demonstrated on more than one occasion. We look for greater things from this boy in the future.

CHARLIE RIGBY

Charlie's specialty is the catching department—when it isn't too hot for him to get out. Charlie has the ability of a real catcher. This is Charlie's last year.

J. TRUESDALE

June is one of our brightest prospects for the team. We feel that he is the long sought for man for the keystone position. June will make a fitting running mate for Phil Roberts.

N. TRUESDALE

This lad is going to make a real fielder. He has a quick throw that beats most runners to the base, and at the bat he is a sure hitter. We're expecting great things of Nubby in the future.

Resume of S. I. A. A.

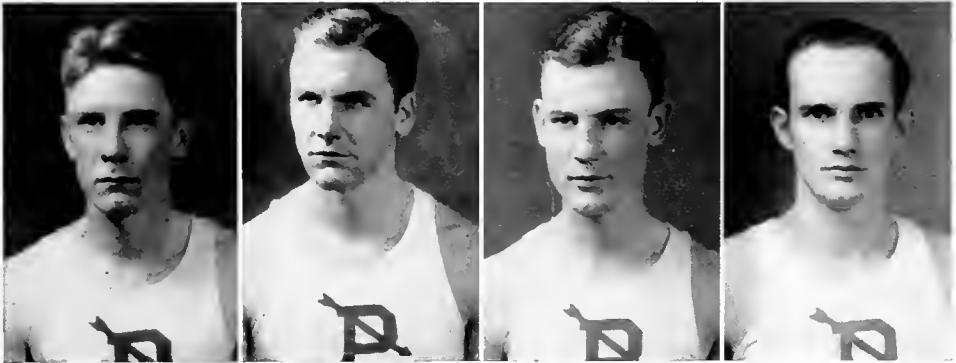

For the second time in three years the P. C. tracksters merged from the season with the highest crown of attainment—the S. I. A. A. Championship. Following a season of success marked with only one defeat in a dual contest and second place in the State, the P. C. men played hosts to teams representing six states in the Southern Intercollegiate Athletic Association, and closed the season by winning.

Never in the history of the S. I. A. A. has the competition been so close or hard as found in Clinton in May. Many schools sent strong teams and with the announcing of the results of each event it became more and more uncertain as to the winner, and up to the final event, the relay, three schools were so close in points that any one of them winning the relay would be the victor in the meet. P. C. had the punch for the final race and won with 29 points against 25 for Mississippi College, 25 for Oglethorpe, and 19 for Georgetown.

To win this outstanding meet for small colleges of the South, P. C. accumulated three firsts, one second, four thirds, and three fourth places. Hogrefe won first place in the 100-yard dash and broad jump, closing his season with the distinction of being the best track man P. C. ever had. The third first place was made by the relay team composed of Green, Wyatt, Hogrefe, and Ritchie, who stepped the mile in time far surpassing the state record and within a fraction of the S. I. A. A. record of long standing. It was a thrilling race, P. C. barely nosing out Louisiana. Pearce, hurdle ace of the Calvinists, won second in the low hurdles to add more tallies to the score. Marshall, his running partner, finished third in the same race close on his heels. Green finished third in the 100-yard dash and in the broad jump, and Ritchie won third place in the 220. Ketchum gathered a point in a pretty half-mile race while Templeton tossed the javelin for a fourth place. Hogrefe ran the 220 close on the heels of Ritchie for an additional point.

While the '29 team did not have the record made by the winners at P. C. in '27, they faced harder competition in all the season's meets and are deserving of much credit. The loss of four members of the team make matters hard for the oncoming squad, but with the usual P. C. spirit this year's team is pointing to their third S. I. A. A. Championship.

*The pure, the bright, the beautiful,
 That stirred our hearts in youth,
 The impulse to a wordless prayer,
 The dreams of love and truth,
 The longings after something lost,
 The spirits yearning cry,
 The strivings after better hopes—
 These things can never die.*

*The timid hand stretch'd forth to aid
 A brother in his need,
 The kindly word in grief's dark hour
 That proves the friend indeed,
 The plea for mercy softly breathed
 When justice threatens nigh,
 The sorrow of a contrite heart—
 These things shall never die.*

*The memory of a clasping hand,
 The pressure of a kiss,
 And all the trifles sweet and frail
 That makes up love's first bliss—
 If with a firm unchanging faith,
 And holy trust and high,
 Those hands have clasp'd, those lips have met,
 These things shall never die.*

Honorary Fraternities on the Campus

TO STIMULATE interest in the finer things of life, to inculcate the desire for self-improvement, to reward those who excel, and to provide a means by which those whose interests are the same might come together and enjoy each other's fellowship and encouragement, honorary fraternities were established at this college. Presbyterian College is indeed fortunate in having honorary fraternities which offer encouragement along so many and such varied lines of endeavor. Following is a brief sketch of each of these societies.

Pi Kappa Delta Forensic Fraternity was the first honorary to be established here. The best orators and debators of the institution have been named on its rolls. The two literary societies, Eukomian for the freshmen and Philomathean for upperclassmen, enroll those men who have shown ability and interest in public speaking. Under the competent instruction of Dr. Seeger and Prof. Swedenberg these men are thoroughly trained in the different phases of forensic work. Pi Kappa Delta receives into membership those of the society who have been particularly outstanding.

The International Relations Club came to this campus as a result of a growing interest among the students in international affairs and a desire to promote good-will and understanding among the nations of the world. Following in quick order came the Chi Beta Phi Scientific fraternity on whose rolls are the names of many men who have made brilliant records in scientific work.

One of the highest scholastic honors that Presbyterian College offers is membership in the Sigma Kappa Alpha class orders which was organized in 1925.

Isis chapter of Sigma Upsilon Literary Fraternity was founded at Presbyterian College in 1925. In stimulating a love for good literature and encouraging its composition, Sigma Upsilon since its installation here has been particularly successful. Sigma Upsilon is the largest national of its kind and the men of Isis chapter feel themselves favored in being granted membership in this famous organization.

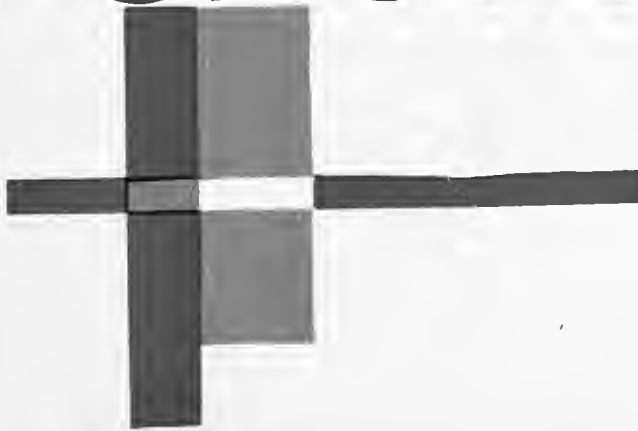

Gamma Sigma is a new comer to this campus, being organized this year. For several years this college has been very fortunate in having among its student body quite a number of promising young journalists. Feeling a need for some means by which to encourage journalist work, the faculty granted these men a charter to found Gamma Sigma.

The Dramatic Club joins in brotherhood those souls which seek expression through the medium of the drama. The club presents several excellent plays each year not only in Clinton, but in surrounding towns. Its programs are always attended by large audiences because the people of the state have learned that they will never be disappointed with a performance of this club.

While most of these organizations are still young on the campus, their members are men of real merit—men whose zeal and enthusiasm lead on to higher things.

Of loveliness alone,

"Well, Dad, Betty won the blue ribbon at the beauty show."

"Good, now she'll have something to wear."

—Boston Beanpot.

"So your father is a Southern planter?"

"Yes, he's an undertaker in Atlanta."

—Froth.

Although God alone can make a tree, it takes a college to make the sap.

—N. Florence Crane Collier.

"This will run into money," cried the monkey as he poured a glass of water in the cash register.

Then there was the modest old maid who wouldn't undress with the Christian Observer in the room.

—Orange Peel.

Where the Modern Honors the Ancient

Books designed in the harmony of Grecian symmetry, printed with the richness of Gutenberg, bound in the finest leather of Cordova, have been preserved in the Castles of the Nobility to give us the inspiration of work in the spirit of their creation.

And now when this book is preserved in your castle, when it exudes the warmth of friendly associations, when it reflects your personality in modern tempo: remember its creation has arisen in the spirit of our heritage, changed only in production methods—methods which are fully abreast of the time, modern in their entirety, unified in their completeness: allowing us to design the theme, engrave all plates, print and bind your annual as a continuous operation.—a work of modern craftsmanship.

WE ARE PROUD OF YOUR APPRECIATION OF OUR SERVICE.

A RETROSPECT

OUR WORK on the PaC SaC has ended. We sincerely hope that you are well pleased with our efforts. We have endeavored to portray the life on our campus and show the growth that has taken place in the last fifty years. If our book pleases you we shall feel well repaid for our efforts, but if it does not, remember that we have done our best.

The editor personally wishes to thank his staff for the cooperation that has been given him.

He also wishes to express his appreciation for the beautiful photographic work done by the WHITE STUDIO, and the excellent service rendered by the engravers and printers, JACOBS & COMPANY.
